Cod region of Massachusetts during the first quarter of the nineteenth century and from this meager start the industry has grown to its present proportions, when more than 20,-000 acres of cranberries are under cultivation, producing more than 1,-000,000 bushels per year. The old Bay State still enjoys the distinction of leading all her sisters in the production of this Thanksgiving delicacy, for whereas New Jersey has a cranberry domain of 8,-350 acres or nearly half as much again as Massachusetts, the Jersey cranberry growers harvest each year only about one-fourth of a million bushels, whereas the land of the Pilgrims, with its smaller area in cranberries, sends nearly 600,000 bushels to the dinner tables of a hungry nation. The Massachusetts yield of 117 bushels per acre is exceeded only in that garden spot Western Oregon, where some small cranberry atches häve yielded 119 per aere.

Two species of cranberries occur in the "belt" of which the brillians hued fruit is a habitant. One is known as the Little Cranberry and is the Old World kind, whereas, the other is the large, or American cranberry. The fruit of the cranberry is borne on short upright shoots of the previous season's growth and the fruit has the appearance of being discributed along the stem, a fact which is taken advantage of in baryesting and which has made it possible to devise mechanical devices that are to a considerable extent increasing the harvesting capacity of the women and children who find occupation as crauberry pickers.

In their composition both spreads of the evanberry are closely allied as the so-called blackberries. Rotanically they are classed matwhy per distinct species, all the blueberries, brickleberries and cranherries going to make up one family. Of this group, so many of which produce delicious dessert and cultury fruits, the crateberry is the only one which has been improved and extensively cultivated. It also enjoys the distinction of being one of the native fruits of America which has become an important commercial product and has won for itself a world-wide reputation.

The areas in which comberries are cultivated or where they are me digenous to the soil are known technically as bogs or mendows, for the removed by a process known as "Night robe, $1,100." For this mere trifle you may buy as beautiful a bit of lingerie as ever graced the person of a royal princess.

The gown is made of hand-wover linen batiste, in whose fine and indescribable sheerness there is not a single flaw. The $1,100 robe de nuit's splendor lies in the Brussels lace and hand embroidery with which it is trimmed. The gown is necessarily plain from the point of Broadway showiness. The lace has been made on a form to fit the yoke, and the incrustations are surrounded by exquisite rose vines of embroidery so fine as to be hardly appreciated by the unknowing oner. Below the embroidery, which falls in tiny roses below the bust, the finest of tucks confine the fullness which is necessary for the body of the gown. The sleeves, made of Brussels lace are short and flowing, and hand embroidered. Around the hem, which is The Lima Dis. Co, opened today for the finest hemstitching, runs a deli- business.

In the retraction printed by said Journal they were formed to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from emittent chemists, all of whom retrilled that tidd not contain alcohol or any of the alleged haymful drugs! These facts were also proven in the Irial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspiction as possible. The matter was, however brought before a tury in the Suprems Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and them has slanders were refuted.

THANKSGIVING COLDS. One thing sure, you do not want o be bothered with a cold Thanksgiving time. You have something else to do just about then, and you do not want to have a cold. You do not want anything that is going to interfere with that taste which you have in your mouth for turkey and can be recommended to your friends as strongly as we recommend it to our customers. We did not recommend it until we learned from experience that it was the most satisfactory cold remedy that we have ever had experience with. We sell hundreds and hundreds of boxes and never have any complaint regarding the effectiveness of it as an almost instantaneous cold cure. Only 25c

That Grace Brown Was Murdered in Cold Blood.

IMPRESSION

That Drowning Did Not Contribute to the Girl's Leath.

Continuation of Famous Trial Will Be Resumed Tomorrow.

By Associated Press.

New York, Nov 29-Dr E H Ensing of this city who has been called to testify in the Gillette trial at Herkimer is said to have been the first physician to examine Grace Brown's oody after it was found

In an interview with a Herald reporter he declared he had not made a full examination of the body, but had confined his observation entirely to the head where he noticed an abrasion on the forehead over the left eye

"Could this have been caused by the ody falling on rocks in the water" "No, I think not," said Dr Eising

The indications were that the wound was received before the body entered the water. It had evidently been caused by a blunt instrument of some sort."

"Do you think drowning contributed n apy way to Grace Brown's death?" 'It would be difficult to say as my examination included only the head My impression is however that n

In a Collision With a C. H. & D. Freight Engine Last Night.

NO ONE WAS INJURED

There Being No One On the Car When the Accident Occurred.

Car number 116, of the depots nd McCullough lake line of the city street railway system, was hit by a freight engine on the Wayne street rossing of the C. H & D. last night shortly after 11 o'clock Fortunately there were no passengers aboard the car at the time the accident occurred and the motorman jumped in time to escape without injury The body of the car was badly wrecked and was hurled over onto the L E & W main track by the force of the collision.

The street car was in charge of motorman Bright and Conductor Tidd and had made its last trip for the night and was being taken to the car barn when the collision occurred Conductor Tidd crossed the tracks ahead of the car at the Wayne street crossing and pulled the lever which closed the derail on the east side of the crossing, allowing the car to run out upon the clossing South bound freight train No 93, of the C H. & D., was pulling across the Pennsylvania tracks and by the time the front end of the street car got upon the C. H & D crossing the engine of the freight train was upon it Motorman Bright did not see the engine in time to stop his car but he did reverse his controller and had time to jump before the crash came. The freight train was also brought to a stop by the time the engine reached North street

The street car railway wreck crew vas called out and the wreck was picked up by 1 o'clock this morning
